

Impact factor for 2010 confirms the prominent position of Biogeosciences

We are proud to announce again an increase of the impact factor for Biogeosciences reaching 3.587 for the year 2010 (5-Year IP 4.064). This impact factor confirms again the ranking of Biogeosciences among the top geosciences and ecology journals. The Chief Editors would like to thank all authors, editors and referees for their contributions to this impressive success. The excellent ranking combined with the two stage open access publication process is a convincing argument to publish your best research in our journal.
